

CHARLTON IS INSANE

Murderer Will Resist the Effort to Return Him to Italy

New York, June 24.—Extradition of Peter Charlton to Italy, to be tried for killing his wife, formerly Mary Scott Castle, will be resisted on the ground that the youth is mentally unsound. On the other hand the brother of the dead woman, Capt. Henry Harrison Scott of the coast artillery, will do everything in his power to secure Charlton's extradition and his punishment in Italy for the crime which was a world-wide mystery until Charlton was arrested yesterday and confessed to the murder of his wife in their villa on Lake Como.

It is indicated that the case of the youth held in Hoboken will be hurried into the hands of the Italian authorities. Charlton's counsel appeared in his seat at the arraignment before Recorder McGovern in Hoboken and secured an adjournment of the hearing until next Tuesday. The youthful prisoner was ordered committed to the Jersey City jail while officialdom and untamed minds struggled with the problem presented by differences between Italian and American laws, bearing on the case and the points of jurisdiction which remained to be considered.

Prisoner Pale.
Charlton's transfer to the Jersey City jail was accomplished with ceremony. Pale, but self-possessed and erect, the young prisoner made his appearance before an immense crowd gathered before the Hoboken jail and walked through a long lane of humanity to a closed cab.

As he emerged from the jail carrying a book and a paper, he removed the black derby he was wearing and held it in front of his face as a shield from the gaze of the curious and from the photographers.

Charlton's removal was preceded by a consultation in the office of Chief of Police Hayes, participated in by the attorneys in the case, Captain Scott and Vice Consul DiRosa, representing the Italian government. At its conclusion, Chief Hayes sent brief telegrams to Attorney General Wickham and Secretary of State Knox at Washington.

"Please advise your wishes," was the message to each.
It was stated officially that it would be determined by the Hoboken recorder's court whether there was evidence to justify holding Charlton for extradition, this evidence to be turned over to the Washington authorities, who would make final determination of the matter.

After the conference Captain Scott held freely of his attitude in connection with the proceedings against Charlton. Captain Scott's voice broke several times as he alluded to his sister's tragic fate.

He made his position plain by declaring he and his legal advisers would make every effort in cooperation with the Italian government to have Charlton extradited and tried in Italy.

Apparently unconcerned over his desperate plight, Charlton spent a comparatively restful night in his cell in the Hoboken jail.

His comfort during the night was materially increased by the kindness of the jail officers who rigged an improvised shower bath in his cell and permitted Charlton to indulge in an unaccounted luxury for prisoners in the rather meagerly fitted Hoboken lock-up.

A desire to avoid Capt. Henry Harrison Scott, his wife's brother, and the man whose vigilance and resourcefulness played an important part in Charlton's capture, and a sympathy toward the attention of newspaper photographers, were apparently still the youthful prisoner's main purpose. It is expected that opposition to Charlton's extradition will largely hinge on the man's physical and mental condition.

He is a Consumptive.
"A consumptive whose actions point to an unsound mind," was the way the prisoner was characterized by his father.

Less Charlton might make an attempt on his own life, a close guard was kept on him last night. Charlton's slumbers, however, were practically uninterrupted.

Whatever nervousness Charlton might have felt over the ordeal of his arraignment did not affect his early routine of preparation for the day. Immediately after rising, he took another bath under the big dish pan that had been punctured full of holes and fitted out with a hose attachment. He emerged refreshed, cheerful and with a hearty appetite for his breakfast of eggs, coffee, rolls and cereal.

Then Charlton sent out for all the papers and read with evident eagerness every story of his own crime that he could get hold of. Charlton's counsel said that in the event that the Italian government moves for an extradition, it would be two weeks before the papers can reach this country. In the meantime Mr. Clark said an inquiry would be made into Charlton's sanity.

Signs of Insanity.
Police Surgeon William J. Arlitz of Hoboken made an examination of Charlton this morning in the jail after which he made the following statement:

"I see signs of insanity, but I don't care to discuss it any further. I have been engaged by Judge Charlton to act as one of the alienists in behalf of the defense. I examined young Charlton last night and again this morning. When one of the police officers handed Charlton a newspaper which printed his picture this morning the officer remarked:

"You're in a pretty tight place boy." Charlton languidly accepted the paper and remarked with an easy air:
"Oh, it might be worse. I am not worrying."

Gustavo DiRosa, Italian consul at New York, preliminary to the examination of Charlton in court, held a long conference with Chief of Police Hayes.

Charlton's examination was delayed by the late arrival of ex-State Senator D. W. Edwards of counsel for the young man.

The dingy little court room in Hoboken where Charlton was arraigned was packed to suffocation.
Mr. Edwards arrived shortly after 10 o'clock and at once got into conference with Chief Hayes. When the doors of the court room opened, only Consul DiRosa, Mr. Edwards, Prosecutor Garven and the chief of police entered. Charlton was not with them.

Case Adjourned.
Mr. Edwards, addressing Recorder McGovern, said he had just been called into the case and had not yet had time to make himself acquainted with its intricacies. He thought an adjournment would be agreeable to all concerned and asked the court to carry the case over a few days.

Prosecutor Garven offered no objection and the court ordered the case adjourned, until next Tuesday at 10 o'clock.

The disposition of Charlton was discussed at some length and it was decided to commit him to the county jail in Jersey City. Charlton was brought into the headquarters while they waited for Mr. Fuchs, the legal adviser, to appear. Commissioner Russ, it was said, was expected to join the conference in the chief's office. Just what the appearance of the representative of federal authority in the case portended did not develop.

When Charlton reached the jail on the Jersey City heights, he was led into the office of Sheriff J. J. Kelley, where his pedigree was taken and he was assigned to a cell.

Charlton looked around his cell, threw down his hat, pulled off his coat and stepping into the corridor, began to pace up and down. With the other prisoners in the ward he was allowed to walk the corridor when he chose in the day time.

Charlton's cell-mate, the jail authorities said, is Willie Burke, a safe breaker, serving a seven-year sentence.

RENO NOW WIDE OPEN

Gambling One of Great Attractions--Johnson Fails to Arrive

Reno, Nev., June 24.—A big crowd that gathered at the station at 10 o'clock this morning to witness the arrival of Jack Johnson met with disappointment. A bulletin announced that the train was indefinitely delayed, and the excitement developed the fact that the derelict of a freight car near "tunnel 13," about forty miles from Reno, was responsible.

The slither number of the tunnel, considered in connection with Johnson's interview with an undertaker before leaving San Francisco last night, furnished food for comment.

The latest report is that the champion and his party probably will not reach this city until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Jim Jeffries, "put one over" on Reno and the visiting newspaper correspondents by pulling off his first boxing session here at 10 o'clock this morning. The big fighter figured that everybody would be at the depot at that hour to see Johnson come in. His guess was exactly right, and when he adjourned with his training partners to the open arena near his cottage at Moana Springs very few persons were on hand to see him perform. Jeffries was very much elated over the success of his stunt.

He sparred three rounds with Bob Armstrong and a couple with Brother Jack, warming up to his ring work in lively fashion and making a splendid impression on the lucky handful of spectators. Bag punching, chest weights, pulling, shadow boxing and the rest of his abdominal exercise was the program, and all of it put in an hour and fifteen minutes of vigorous training.

Jeffries perspired copiously, but seemed to enjoy his work, and as a windup he indulged in a bit of horse play with his Oakland friend, Dick Adams, that caused much merriment among the onlookers.

Jeffries probably will rest this afternoon, though he says he is anxious to take a light jog on the road before the day is over.

Despite Promoter Rickard's definite announcement last night that his and Jeffries' interest in the fight pictures had been sold to an Eastern syndicate, Manager Sam Berger this morning denied that Jeffries' interest had been disposed of.

Jack Gleason is expected to arrive here tonight.

Gambling Is Brik.

Reno, Nev., June 24.—"Hereafter I intend to fight my way out of trouble."

Promoter Tex Rickard was mightily wrought up when he made that statement at midnight last night. He was discussing with a group of newspapermen the altercation he had had earlier in the evening with Promoter Sid Hester and which the Nevada summer ended by thrusting Hester aside so forcibly that Sid lost his hat and his glasses.

"I've reached my limit," Rickard went on. "Every way I turn I find somebody trying to buck me. From now on I fight."

"What's your fighting weight, Tex?" some one laughed.

"Whoever I hit will find out," the promoter replied with a return to his usual good humor.

Rickard and Tom Flanagan were all prepared this morning for Jack Johnson's arrival from San Francisco. Flanagan had arranged two automobiles and a truck to transport the champion's party, bag and baggage, to the roadside which is to serve as the negro's training quarters.

The question of what effect the sharp change in altitude here will have on Johnson is being given much thought by Flanagan. He says he will advise against heavy road work and disperse the champion to confining himself to very light exercise on his arrival. Boxing, he thinks, will constitute Johnson's main work thereafter.

Flanagan has been keeping an eye on Jeffries since the big fellow's advent to Reno. He says he is much impressed with Jeffries' appearance and expects to see a long drawn-out battle between him and the negro.

Out at Moana Springs, Jeffries is taking life easy. Not even the Sullivan incident yesterday has caused a perceptible ripple in the cheerful spirit. He had shown since coming to Nevada and his trainers express themselves as fully satisfied that no ill-effects have been suffered by him in coming here.

With both fighters settled in their respective camps, work on the arena under way and with no prospect of any further interference in preparations for the battle, Reno is settling down to comparative quiet. The "aplet" is strictly comparative, however, for not in many years, citizens say, has the town sheltered so cosmopolitan a gathering as now nightly throngs its cafes and gilded temples of chance. The click of the roulette and the droning of the voices of the dealer resound above the clamor of crowded saloons.

That sort of thing is a great novelty for the eastern visitors and most of them seem bent on missing nothing that flavors of the stories they have read of life in the great west.

Reno herself is beginning to stir up and take notice of her gambling halls' activities.

The lure of the big battle is attracting others besides fight fans. Faces familiar in the old days are recognized in the town's resorts, the faces of the men who went to Rawhide, who heard the call of Banner and responded to the beckoning spectre at the top of Jebelidge mountain. All are back and the voice of the paid "entertainer" is again heard trailing out the ancient and honorable melody of "Dear Old Girl."

CALLS ON GOVERNOR TO STOP THE FIGHT

Cincinnati, June 24.—The Ohio Chamber of Commerce today adopted a resolution, conveyed in vigorous terms, calling on the governor of Nevada to prevent the Jeffries-Johnson fight on July 4th.

Governor Expected.

Reno, Nev., June 24.—Dex Rickard is expecting Governor Dickinson to arrive here next Tuesday. Rickard's former partner, Ole Elliott, is in receipt of a telegram from a newspaper in Ely stating that the governor will probably be in Reno on that day. Just what object the governor would have in coming to Reno at this time is a matter of conjecture, but it is generally thought a visit from him would have no special bearing on the big fight.

Reno Buying Tents.

Sacramento, Cal., June 24.—All the visible supply of tents in Sacramento has been used up by the merchants of Reno and will be used to house the visitors who will attend the Jeffries-Johnson fight. Yesterday morning several prominent Reno merchants arrived in the city and toured the various stores in Sacramento where tents are kept in stock and bought up the entire supply.

At the present time it is impossible to get accommodations in Reno, reservations having been made in all hotels and boardinghouses.

It is expected that with the supply of tents bought in Sacramento the thousands of visitors to Reno will be accommodated with sleeping quarters.

IRRIGATION BILL FAILS

Senate Does Not Like Inspection by the Engineer Corps

Washington, June 24.—Senator Lodge, today reported to the senate that the conference on the irrigation reclamation bill had failed to reach an agreement and a further conference was ordered. The only matter of difference between the two houses pertained to the house provision requiring the inspection of government projects by the engineer corps of the army, which was stricken out by the senate.

Smoot at Conference.

In an effort to adjust the difference between the Republican conference of the house and senate on the bill appropriating $20,000,000 for reclamation work in the west, President Taft invited all of them to luncheon today.

The differences are the extent to which recommendations of the army engineers shall govern the decision to carry on the various projects that have been undertaken or projected.

The President is said to favor the senate provision which is not quite so binding as the house clause and leaves a little more latitude to the executive.

The President's guests at luncheon were Senators Lodge, Bailey and Smoot and Representatives Payne, Clark and Dalzell.

Another measure still in dispute is the pension appropriation bill, the controversy being over the proposition of the house to abolish the eighteen pension agencies throughout the country and establish one agency in Washington. Had it not been for the illness of Senator McCumber, this question would probably have been disposed of long ago. The senate conferees expect the house to yield and leave the law as it now exists.

Conferees on the general deficiency bill agreed today and it is expected the sundry civil bill will be completed in conference before night.

EARNEST ADVOCATE OF AN ALLIANCE

New York, Jan. 24.—The Duke of Sutherland, who strikingly resembles Andrew Carnegie in appearance and is known as one of the wealthiest members of the English nobility, was in New York today on his way to Canada to look after personal business matters. He is an earnest advocate of an alliance between Great Britain and the United States and pointed out to his interviewers the advisability of such a union.

"I do not mean necessarily that the two nations should enter into a written and sealed alliance," he said, "but simply that they should make what we might call a gentlemen's agreement. This could be done without violating any of the rules of international amity as respects other nations. It would preserve the world's peace and give an impetus to the growth of a higher civilization throughout the world. My interest both in Canada and the United States is strong. Both are wonderful countries. Canada is developing fast and offers great opportunities for business enterprises and for those interested in agriculture."

Washington, June 24.—Moses Haas of New York and Frederick Peckham of Cincinnati, after fighting for five years against indictments returned against them in the cotton leak in the department of agriculture, today entered pleas of guilty to the count in the indictment charging conspiracy to effect misconduct in office.

On the recommendation of the department of agriculture, Justice C. Gould imposed a fine of $6,000 on Haas and $5,000 on Peckham, which they paid and were released from custody. The other indictments pending against them were nolle prossed.

AIRSHIP FOR THIS COUNTRY

Minneapolis, L. I., June 24.—Count Zeppelin's feat of inaugurating a passenger-carrying airship line may soon be duplicated in the United States if the hopes of Captain Thomas S. Baldwin, who built the United States army dirigible No. 1, are fulfilled. Given the necessary capital, Captain Baldwin is confident that a fleet of dirigibles could be put into commission within three months, to travel

GENERAL FUNSTON DANGEROUSLY ILL

Leavenworth, Kan., June 24.—General Frederick M. Funston, commander of the army service school here, is dangerously ill with an attack of heart disease at his home.

NOT A FREE COUNTRY

New York, June 24.—Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont will spend the summer in a study of the woman's suffrage movement in England, with a view to enlarging her activities here. She will sail on Wednesday next, to be gone until September.

"I expect to meet Dr. Anna Shaw in England," she said in a farewell interview published here today, "and together we will make a thorough study of the three suffrage associations there. We will learn the ways of the conservatives and the militants and then we will adopt in our work ever here those methods which we think are best suited to the work in America."

"The suffrage bill has already been introduced in England and there seems little doubt now of its passage. If the English women do win, then we will know that their victory is due in a large measure to their method and that is why we are so anxious to give them a closer study and bring them back with us."

"The men make it easier for women in England, while the men here make it harder. All they have to do in England is to win over a handful of men who are in power while we have to convert hundreds to make any headway. Now which is the 'freer country' I do not consider this a free country."

Mrs. Belmont Thinks the United States Is Unfair

On a regular schedule between New York and Chicago.
"In spite of Zeppelin's success," said Captain Baldwin, in an interview given out today, "I still pin my faith on the non-rigid type. By this, I mean the balloon type made of rubber silk instead of an aluminum envelope with many compartments. The bags measuring 150 feet would hold 80,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas in three compartments.
"Personally, I think the first dirigible to make the trip will be the smallest in the world ever built for endurance work. In my opinion, this craft will not be over 150 feet long and will be driven by a fifty horsepower engine.
"With such a ship, I could transport six persons and their baggage from New York to Chicago in 30 hours, and I would be able to navigate in winds up to thirty miles an hour with perfect safety. A craft of this kind would not exceed in cost $50,000, against the $500,000, which is the price of a Zeppelin."

PINCHOT AND GARFIELD

Are Guests of Roosevelt at His Sagamore Hill Home

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 24.—Theodore Roosevelt began today what he hopes will be a period of real rest at Sagamore Hill.

When he went home last night, it was with the express intention of remaining there with a few of his old friends until next Tuesday, when he is to start for Cambridge, Mass. With him today are Gifford Pinchot, former chief of the forestry service, and James G. Garfield, ex-secretary of the interior.

The tennis court at Sagamore Hill has been put in shape for the season, and it is expected there will be a renewal of the "tennis cabinet" matches.

GEORGE GOULD BUYS FRENCH RACING STABLE.

New York, June 24.—It was news in racing circles today that George Gould had bought the stable of M. Vell Plard, the French racing man who recently announced his retirement from the turf because, as he said, French racing had been spoiled by "Americanization," and by
